

Private Day School

School Profile

Pope John XXIII High School is home to approximately 300 students who are proud to call themselves Tigers (their school mascot). The school offers a college preparatory curriculum, welcoming community and a good mix of after school activities; making it a great choice for both domestic and international students. The school delivers academic excellence while also focusing on building the community and serving others through Catholic Education. 100% of the graduating classes are accepted into college, with more than 85% of students getting into their top choice. The school is available for both boarding and day school placement. Pope John XXIII High School was awarded Top Private School in Boston by Boston Magazine.
